Green Guide to Utrecht - 04/05/2011

The perfect destination

-FOR A GREEN CITY BREAK

Utrecht is almost 2000 years old. Stroll down the streets and along the canals in the Utrecht Museum Quarter, the cultural treasury in the very heart of the city and sample the pleasant, intimate atmosphere for which Utrecht is famous.

In the Middle Ages, Utrecht was the ecclesiastical centre of the Netherlands and its skyline was dominated by dozens of church towers. Today, the city has eight medieval churches. With a height of 112 metres, the Dom tower is the highest church tower in the Netherlands and the eye-catcher of the 'Dom city', which functions as a landmark throughout the city.

CONCISE HISTORY

Around 47 AD, the Romans built the Trajectum castellum (fortress) to reinforce the northern border of their empire along the Rhine where the Domplein is now located. Late 7th century, the English missionary Willibrord designed the fortress as a mission and a small town developed. In 1122, the inhabitants of Utrecht were awarded the privileges of a city. This meant that they had their own government, income and approval to build a wall around the city. Over the next centuries. Utrecht developed into a religious establishment and trade underwent unprecedented growth through the construction of a medieval harbour complex of canals, wharves and wharf cellars. Utrecht remained the largest and most important city in the Netherlands until the 16th century.

THE DOM

The Dom tower is the pride of Utrecht: the Dom cathedral was also, until a tornado swept away the nave on the summer evening of 1 August 1674! How could this happen? In order to collect money for the construction of the cathedral, clergymen travelled through the diocese of Utrecht to sell indulgences for absolution or moderation of sins. After the construction of the current Dom church (1254-1517) and Dom tower (1321-1382), there was no money left and the nave was 'finished' without flying buttresses, with shortened buttresses and a level wooden ceiling instead of stone vaults. Is this construction the 'culprit'? Historians assume it was bad luck: the whirlwind caused lower pressure in the church and thus brought about the collapse of the nave. The contours of the nave are depicted in the black cobbles on the Dom square. The high trees represent the then walls and covering.

DOM CHURCH UTRECHT

The Dom church draws large crowds daily for a guided tour or a moment of silence and peace. The free Saturday afternoon concerts (3.30 pm) have been a household word in Utrecht for over thirty vears.

RIETVELD SCHRÖDER HOUSE

The Rietveld Schröder House; the masterpiece by Gerrit Rietveld, highlight of 'De Stijl', icon of the city of Utrecht and monument on the World Heritage List, is an absolute must. Utrecht architect Gerrit Rietveld (1888-1964) built it for Truus Schröder. This house is the only building ever to have been realized according to the architectonic principles of artistic trend De Stijl. The typical Stijl colours red, blue and yellow, combined with black, white, grey and the relation between interior and exterior and the unity between separate furniture and fixed components in the design are typical. A visit to the meticulously devised Rietveld Schröder House is a true discovery where each part of the house tells its own story.

2013 will be the 300th anniversary of the Peace Treaty of Utrecht, the first peace that was concluded at the negotiation table instead of the battlefield.

For eighteen months, Utrecht was the host, partner and stage for an international company that determined Europe's future. Art and culture, meetings and dialogues between various cultures played a major role during these peace negotiations in 1713. And now they once more form the central theme in the international cultural programme of the Peace Treaty of Utrecht in 2013 with the title of: 'The Art of Making Peace'. There are various activities and events throughout the year, both in the city and province. For months, celebrations will be held in the city as well as in the province. The Stichting Vrede van Utrecht is an initiative by the local authority and province of Utrecht. Celebrating the Peace Treaty of Utrecht is not the only event in the pipeline: the local authority and province are hoping to make Utrecht the 2018 Cultural Capital of Europe. We will prepare the nomination for the 2018 Cultural Capital together.

The year 2012 will be all about the preparations for the 'The Art of Making Peace' festival to be celebrated in September. From September 2012, the first three exhibitions will open in the Museum Quarter:' Utrecht Garnizoenstad (Utrecht garrison city in the Utrecht Archief), 'Spelregels voor de Vrede' (Rules of play for peace in the University Museum) about everyday diplomacy and human rights, and an exhibitions about military lines of defence (the Dom Tower).

ELF FANTASY FAIR™: YOU'LL NEVER DREAM ALONE!

21 & 22 April 2012

Over 25,000 costumes will be on display during the Elf Fantasy Fair, which will take place in and around the largest castle in the Netherlands, Kasteel de Haar. Following the carnival in Venice, this probably is the most extensive costume parade worldwide.

In 2012, emphasis will be on Egyptian gods and pharaohs, so an extensive number of anubises and osirises are expected to show on 21 & 22 April, in addition to Star Wars Storm troopers, Lord of the Rings elves, Twilight Vampires and Mad Max vehicles. While getting a mead beer at the Viking ship next to the medieval market, see how an eight-metre-high pyramid of straw is created. Medieval soldiers from Germany and the Ukraine will enter into full contact combat. A small group of Huns on horses are attacked by the cannons of a stray gang of pirates of captain Flint. Anything is possible at the Elf Fantasy Fair that will be held for the twelfth time and is commonly known as the Kingdom of Elfia among fans. Special guests will include 'Darth Vader' creator Brian Muir, Brian 'Dark Crystal' Froud and Eragon author Christopher Paolini. On the main stage (which has been transformed into a colossal time machine) bands from all over Europe will play folk and medieval music. Tickets are available at www.elffantasyfair.com € 12.50 (children) and € 19.95 (adults).

CYCLE THROUGH THE GOLDEN AGE

As a sumptuous boulevard, the Vecht river meanders between Amsterdam and Utrecht, framed by hydrangeas, high trees and austere lawns with tea pavilions as preludes of a view of the magnificent country estates. Rich Amsterdam merchants used to flee the city to relax at the Vecht. The busy boat traffic on the river and in the locks provides a pleasant picture.

THE UTRECHTSE HEUVELRUG NATIONAL PARK

The Utrechtse Heuvelrug National Park allows for wonderful walking and cycling tours across the lateral moraine, taking in moors, castles and country estates in the forelands and wooded areas. Put on your walking shoes for the 11-km trip starting at the picturesque Amerongen castle and climb to the highest point of the Utrechtse Heuvelrug, the 69-metre high Amerongen mountain to enjoy the beautiful view of the Gelderse Vallei. Then follow a second climb to the 'lonely oak' on the eastern summit, with a view of Veenendaal. A total of 56 walking routes have been mapped, varying from 2 to 21 kilometres. A number of bicycle and walking routes are available at Tourist Information Offices, local catering establishments and Dutch Forestry Commission barns.

EXPERIENCE THE WATER DEFENCE LINE

Numerous places and constructions in the landscape are reminiscent of the Dutch Water Defence Line, some sturdy and distinct, such as the fortresses: and other hidden elements, such as dykes, casemates, inundation canals and sluices. Many defensive works have been given a new function: restaurant, theatre, conference centre or museum. In and around Utrecht, see what the Netherlands' secret weapon is all about.

STATION AREA & ACCESSIBILITY

Utrecht is centrally located and the ideal operating base for a (city) visit to the Netherlands. Amsterdam and Schiphol Airport are just 30 minutes by train; Rotterdam and The Hague at 45 minutes. Daily international trains from and to Brussels (2 hours), Cologne (2.5 hours) and Paris (3,5 hours). For more info, go to www.ns.nl and www.nshighspeed.nl

The station area is undergoing a 'facelift' with the ultimate goal to combine the station and the old city centre. Inconvenience is limited as much as possible and Utrecht remains easily accessible.
